

Have your say at TRRA !

TRRA allows you to comment on some of the posts and submissions on our website, as a space for you to contribute your thoughts about current TRRA matters and participate in civil conversations about topical issues.

All comments are moderated and we make no guarantees that your contribution will be published. By submitting a comment, you agree to abide by our House Rules.

Comments: House Rules

TRRA encourages members and the public to comment on the Posts and Submissions on this site, as an opportunity for you to contribute your thoughts and feedback to the management Committee about current TRRA matters and participate in civil conversations about topical issues. All comments are moderated and we make no guarantees that your contribution will be published. By submitting a comment, you agree to abide by our House Rules:

- Be polite. Treat other people using the website, including TRRA moderators, with respect and courtesy. Comments using inappropriate language, which are abusive towards other users, or which appear to deliberately provoke arguments, will be deleted. Refer to politicians, Councillors and other public figures by their real names instead of calling them nicknames.
- Don't break the law. Do not post comments which are defamatory, discriminatory, incite violence, infringe copyright or are otherwise unlawful. Messages that are factually wrong and misleading may also be deleted.
- Stay on topic. The space provided on Posts and Submissions is provided for you to discuss the content. Do not post messages which are irrelevant.
- Be concise. Preference will be given to contributions which are no more than 200 words long but the TRRA reserves the right to publish longer contributions if, in the view of the moderators, a comment offers a particular insight.
- Be original. Preference is given to comments that represent viewpoints that have not yet been widely canvassed by other contributors.
- Don't dominate the conversation. So that TRRA can publish comments from as many different perspectives as possible, it reserves the right to reject contributions from participants who seek to dominate the discussion unreasonably.
- Don't advertise. Contributions that seek to endorse commercial products or activities or solicit business will not be accepted. TRRA publishes links to other websites at its sole discretion.
- Use appropriate identification. Contributors are advised that use of their full names is optional, a first name or clever nom de plume is OK. Do not use a nickname that is defamatory, abusive or contains swearing. Contributors must not intentionally impersonate other living people. Your email address and details will not be posted on our site.

Your participation in TRRA comments is also governed by the TRRA General Disclaimer and our Privacy Policy on the 'about' page.

We look forward to your participation. 'Have your say at TRRA!'